

Robotics Engineering

What you will learn in this program

In Robotics Engineering, you will master the basic theoretical knowledge and application ability of design, control, sensing, intelligent information processing and other aspects required by the robot engineering specialty, and obtain the engineering training required in the field of robotics engineering. This will lay a solid foundation for independent design, programming, application research, system maintenance and production management in the field of robotics engineering.

1. Certified highest diploma, and transcript with an average of over 70% (notarized documents)
2. Copy of Passport home page, and soft copy of your passport photo with white background, photo size 480x720
